

A screenshot of a mobile application showing a payment summary. The screen has a dark background with white text and icons. At the top, there is a back arrow icon, a download icon, a delete icon, an envelope icon with a dot, and a three-dot menu icon. The main title is "Payment summary". Below the title, there is a table with three rows. The first row shows a flight from "BGI → JFK" with a cost of "$335.73". The second row shows the "Trip total" with a cost of "$335.73". The third row shows "Points redeemed" with a value of "22,382 pts". At the bottom of the screen, there is a dark callout box containing the text "Here's how we've allocated your points:" and "22,382 eligible pts redeemed at 1.5x value".

The flight was originally charged for $335.73 which is what may be showing up on the total online, but according to our records, that transaction was corrected by the third party you originally booked with and only $267.53 was officially charged for the ticket, if you see on your bank statement that more was charged, you may have to reach out to the third party you booked with to address the remaining balance
